A Message from Alison Hicks on Divorce

I Understand Your Path.

I may not know the nuances of your life changes yet, but I have first-hand experience of divorce that motivates me to represent you for the best possible outcome.

Raised in a strict Christian household, divorce was not something I knew even to be an option. When I was a teenager, my parents had been married for twenty years when they decided to divorce. It was not easy on them, but the conflict was unbearable for myself and my younger sister. I watched my parents get legal advice, both good and bad, from local attorneys. Some of these professionals I practiced with when I first worked as an attorney.

As an adult, I have too experienced divorce. I understand the pain and confusion divorce seekers are going through.

I understand first-hand that divorce can cause damage felt even decades later, if not handled correctly. The divorce of a marriage usually does not end the relationship; instead it evolves into a new relationship with new issues. I make it my goal to help you move forward with your life with the most ease possible.

-Alison Hicks, Esq.

"Alison's life experience and her personal experience was what made her the right attorney for me. It prepared her for every curve ball. She was ready to step up and help me through this difficult process."

About Alison Hicks

A native San Antonian, Alison Hicks grew up near Helotes. She undertook her undergraduate study at the University of Texas at Austin and graduated with a Bachelor of Arts degree majoring in Philosophy and minoring in government. After receiving her degree, Ms. Hicks lived in Austin and worked as a legislative aide for Representative Bill Collegari of Katy, Texas. She was the front line for reviewing legislation proposed to the State House of Representatives and legislation Mr. Collegari was interested in proposing. She received first-hand experience in how laws were written, from conception to signing, helpful experience to be sure when she decided to pursue a legal career. Her last two years in Austin were spent working for an influential lobbying firm whose clients came from from areas as diverse as a municipal attorney Political Action Committee to daycare providers.

Alison entered legal studies in 2003 in her hometown at St. Mary's University. During her legal education, she participated in the competitive moot court program and argued cases before appellate courts in New York City, Chicago and Charleston, South Carolina. Upon graduation, Ms. Hicks argued and won before both the Texas Supreme Court and the Texas Appellate Court. Her background in appeals fine-tuned her trial skills and enables her to ensure that her appellate case issues remain intact and actionable.

While attending St. Mary's University, Ms. Hicks was elected by her classmates Student Bar Association President. She won the Patricia A. Scott award as the best oral advocate of her graduating class. She won the State Moot Court Competition, defeating over 15 other law schools and arguing a case before the Supreme Court of Texas. That honor had not been held by St. Mary's University for over 5 years.

Alison Hicks is an experienced trial attorney. She began her career in 2006 as a family law attorney and won high profile cases such as one where a father was awarded child custody, a rarity at that time. In 2009, she decided she could best serve clients by focusing on high conflict family law matters and became one of the founding partners in her own firm. As a result of her work in this area, she was named a "Rising Star" in the Scene in SA magazine.
